

HERE AT STONY BROOK - Monday, Aug. 27, 1984

INTRO UP AND UNDER

Hi, everybody. The Soviets and many of their Eastern European allies decided to boycott this summer's Olympics in Los Angeles. How did the people of the Soviet Union and Eastern European countries react to what their governments decided to do? Edward Czerwinski has spent much of the past year in Europe and the Soviet Union. He is a professor of Germanic and Slavic languages at the State University of New York at Stony Brook. We'll with him about this in a moment.

Later in the program, we'll talk with a neurologist and a psychologist who operate a...headache clinic. Yes, good, old-fashioned headaches.

Dr. Czerwinski, you've just returned from Europe. What has been the attitude of Europeans to the Los Angeles Olympics?

INTERVIEW DR. CZERWINSKI: - Background to Olympic ban decisions
- Reagan's recent decisions re Poland
- Discuss "people in the street" re U.S.
- Are conditions abroad better or worse than they were four years ago?
- Discuss Dr. Czerwinski's art interests

13:30

BRIDGE UP AND UNDER

Headaches are something like mothers-in-law and the common cold. They are the butt of jokes. Most of us can laugh at these subjects so long as the joker doesn't make us the butt of the joke. But in fact, headaches and all the other subjects like them are no laughing matter to the people who suffer from chronic, intractable headaches. Dr. Howard Sachs, a neurologist, and Dr. Richard Friedman, a psychologist, are active in conducting a new service called a headache clinic at the State University of New York at Stony Brook. Dr. Sachs, the Department of Neurology, of which you are a faculty member, has just begun this service at Stony Brook.

MORE

Dr. Friedman, you're on the faculty of Stony Brook's Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences. How do you fit into the Headache Clinic?

INTERVIEW DRS. SACHS AND FRIEDMAN:

- What is a headache? Real or imagined?
- Describe it, physically
- Talk about some tough cases
- What is being done to help those in pain?
- What research is giving signs of new help?
- What signs should a person look for to distinguish between an occasional problem and a potentially dangerous, growing one?

28:30 BRIDGE UP AND UNDER

Next week, we'll be talking with Alan Abramowitz about the Republican convention, and about what to look for as the political parties head towards the big election in November. Until then, this is Al Oickle. So long, everybody.

OUTRO