

To All Faculty & Staff

Dear Colleagues,

The Provost's Lecture Series in conjunction with Darwin Day is please to host a talk by Dr. Sean Carroll.

Dr. Carroll, who earned his Ph.D. from Tufts University Medical School, is the acknowledged leader of the exciting new biological field known as Evo Devo (evolutionary development). His groundbreaking book, Endless Forms Most Beautiful, was published in 2005 to rave reviews in scientific and mainstream publications. His most recent work, Making of the Fittest compelled U.S. News & World Report, to declare him "the new user-friendly public face of evolutionary science."

Dr. Carroll will give a lecture entitled: "Making of the Fittest" this Thursday, February 15, 2007 at 7:30 PM in the Student Activities Center Auditorium. Please note that Dr. Carroll will also be signing books following the lecture.

Please pass along this information to any students or community members you feel may be interested in attending.
