Part of The Science Fiction Forum's mission statement is to promote literacy around Stony Brook Campus. One way of promoting literacy is by getting students in contact with authors and others already involved in the publishing profession. For half the price of the maximum amount of money a club is allowed to spend on bringing a guest speaker to campus, The Science Fiction Forum can allow many students on campus to meet not only more authors than we would ever be able to bring to campus in a single year, but they would also meet a greater variety of people who work in all different literary fields.
