About This Issue

This special issue of Currents has been mailed to all USB students and faculty with the hope that it will be helpful in preparing for the new academic year. To incoming freshmen and transfer students—and to their parents—we extend an extra-special welcome.

We have steadily increased the circulation of Currents over the last year to serve broader segments of the Stony Brook community. For the first time, we now are able to offer annual subscriptions to parents wishing to stay closely informed of university news and events. If you wish to begin a subscription for 1989-90, a coupon is provided for your convenience on page 4.

Opportunities Knock

18 Ways to Unleash Your Potential

Maybe this should be the year you do something different. Really different.

Like study abroad for a term. Or try out for a play. Or take the night shift at WUSB.

A few people go through college knowing exactly what they're going to do in life, earn their degrees and go do it.

A great many more think they know exactly what they're going to do in life, then discover some other interest or talent altogether.

Something clicks—and life takes on a sharper focus. For many, this is the essence of the college experience.

One of Stony Brook's great strengths is the range of opportunities students find to pursue new interests and challenges. Hoping that the coming academic year will be a great one for you, we offer the following checklist of options to explore.

☐ Go International

Stony Brook students with junior or senior status may study in any of the 63 countries in which SUNY institutions sponsor programs. Air fare is the only additional cost involved. Students may opt to spend a full year abroad, or only a semester or inter-session; summer programs are particularly popular. If you're interested in studying abroad this spring, contact the Office of International Programs at 632-6030. Depending on the program, the deadline for submitting applications is Oct. 15 or Nov. 1.

☐ Get Acquainted

"Stony Brook 101," a one-credit course for freshmen, aims to assist students in adjusting to college life. Among topics covered: basic "survival" skills, time/stress management, how to use the library, mental and physical health, and how to interact effectively with faculty. A key aim of the course is to foster one-on-one relationships between students and faculty. Interested students should contact the Office of Undergraduate Studies, Room E-3320, Melville Library. Phone: 632-7080.

☐ Find a Mentor

In Homer's Odyssey, Mentor serves Telemachus as a trusted guide and counselor. Through Stony Brook's Mentor Program, faculty and staff serve in similar roles to personalize the college experience for students, particularly those of color. Student "protégés" participating in the program join faculty and staff mentors in a variety of events conducted through the year, including a brunch with members of the Black/Hispanic Alumni Network, the "Mentor Cup Competition," a dinner and a cultural event in the Staller Center or New York City. In addition, mentors and students participate in their own scheduled outings throughout the year.

A reception for interested students will be hosted in the Office of Special Programs Wednesday, Sept. 20 from 3:30 to 6:30 p.m. Students may call 632-7090 for more information. The Office of Special Programs is in Room W-3520, Melville Library.

☐ Sing a Song

Musically inclined students will find several outlets for performance at Stony Brook. Auditions for most musical groups will be conducted over the first two weeks of the fall semester.

- Stony Brook Chorale. The chorale, made up of students and community members, performs annually with the Long Island Brass Guild and—in the highlight of its season this fall—will perform "St. Nicholas," a cantata by Benjamin Britten, during the Feast of St. Nicholas at the dedication of West Babylon's Greek Orthodox Shrine Church. The Chorale rehearses Monday evenings from 7:30 to 10 p.m. Anyone who can read music and enjoys singing is encouraged to audition Monday, Sept. 11 at 7:30 p.m. in the Staller Center for the Arts.

- Undergraduate Orchestra and Wind Ensemble. Students may receive academic credit for performing in these groups. The Wind Ensemble rehearses Monday and Wednesday evenings from 7 to 10 p.m., while the orchestra rehearses Thursday from 7 to 10 p.m. Several public performances are scheduled each year. Musicians who play woodwinds, strings, brass or percussion instruments are invited to audition between Tuesday, Sept. 5 and Thursday, Sept. 7. Performers will be asked to prepare two contrasting movements from a concerto or etude for Jack Kreiselman, director. Appointments may be made by calling the Department of Music at 632-7330.

☐ Get in Shape

Tryouts for Patriot fall sports teams will take place during the first week of classes.

Men may try out for football, soccer, tennis and cross-country. Women may try out for soccer, cross-country, tennis and volleyball. Winter and spring sports tryouts will be held beginning in mid-October. Those interested in trying out should call or stop by the gym to make an appointment with the appropriate coach. Phone: 632-6710.

☐ Get a Hobby

Operated by the Department of Student Union and Activities, the Union Crafts Center offers non-credit classes in such crafts as photography, pottery, stained glass, watercolor painting, silk-screen painting, wood carving, floor-loom weaving, rug weaving, clay sculpture and life drawing. Non-credit classes also are offered in amateur radio, bartending, wine appreciation, aerobics, scuba diving, auto mechanics, cooking and dancing.

For more information: Call the Crafts Center, located in the lower level of the SB Union, at 632-6822.

☐ Go Greek

Stony Brook's 11 fraternities and six sororities emphasize brotherhood, sisterhood, scholarship and campus/community service. All maintain active membership in the Inter-Fraternity/Sorority Council (IFSC).

Rushee and pledge information sessions are scheduled for 7 p.m., Room 236 in the SB Union on Thursday, Sept. 21; Monday, Sept. 25, and Thursday, Oct. 5. Other fall events are scheduled as follows:

- Tuesday, Sept. 5. Opening Week Fraternity and Sorority Party, 9 p.m., SB Union Ballroom.

- Thursday, Sept. 21. IFSC Fraternity and Sorority Information Fair, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., Fireside Lounge, SB Union.

- Wednesday, Sept. 27 and Wednesday, Nov. 15. Fraternity/Sorority Workshop, "Building a Positive Image," 7 p.m., SB Union Auditorium.

This Summer's Orientation

Celebrating Stony Brook's Diversity

The Committee to Celebrate Diversity has chosen programming themes for the coming academic year.

This year the themes will be: Diversity of Life-styles in October; Diversity of Ages in November; Diversity of Religions in December; Black History Month in February; International Women's Month in March; and Diversity of Cultures: A Focus on Asia in April.

Events celebrating Stony Brook's diversity of life-styles might include, for example, presentations relating to single parenthood, fraternity life, lesbianism, and issues affecting the commuter student. Events celebrating campus diversity of ages could include programs on and by everyone from children residing in Chapin Apartments to senior citizen auditors.

Each month, the committee publishes and distributes a calendar of events which relates to the month's theme, and gives a $500 award to the campus organization sponsoring the event which best celebrates the month's theme.

In 1988-89, four calendars were published and four awards were given. In December, the Interfaith Center's program, "Celebrating Religious Diversity" won the first award. In February, Africana Studies won for a series of programs relating to Black History Month. The Campus Women's Safety Committee won in March for a conference that focused on date rape, "Power and Violence in Relationships." In April, the President's Advisory Committee on Affirmative Action & Equal Opportunity sponsored the award winning town hall meeting on "Adapting to Diversity."

Winning organizations may spend the award money on future events which celebrate Stony Brook's diversity of students, faculty and staff.

Sponsoring groups are encouraged to plan events with a major goal being the active introduction of the diverse segments of our population to each other. If an event is being planned which fits one of this year's themes, please contact the Division of Campus Residences to be included on the committee's calendar and consideration for the committee's monthly award.

Interfaith Center to Sponsor Pot Luck Dinner for New International Students

Members of the Interfaith Center seek to furnish resources for the development of religious life throughout the university community. They accomplish this by holding workshops and other forums that deepen the knowledge of and appreciation for each religious tradition.

One of the many programs sponsored by the Interfaith Center is the new international students dinner to be held on Thursday, August 31 at 7 p.m. in the Benedict Cafeteria. This event welcomes approximately 300 new international students to the United States, the university, and the Stony Brook community.

A pot-luck supper is provided by administrators, faculty, staff, host families and members of the local community, and gives the new international students an opportunity to meet each other and members of the Stony Brook community. The dinner also allows the university and the local community to work together and demonstrate their commitment to the diversity of cultures on campus. It also enhances our outreach program to the new international students in their transition from one culture to another and in adapting to a new and different educational environment.

One of the many assets of Stony Brook is the diversity of cultures on campus. The international students who attend USB contribute to this enriching atmosphere.

These students are interested in their academic studies, but they are also interested in broadening their educational experience to include an awareness of our American culture and society. One way of accomplishing this is to get to know families and sharing activities with the community. In addition, foreign students themselves are an excellent resource for those who want to learn about other countries and cultures.

Being a host family can be a very rich experience, and it is easy to become one. The family meets the international student who is assigned to them at the dinner August 31. After the initial meeting, the host family often invites the student for dinner, gives a brief tour of the local area and generally keeps up-to-date on the international student's adjustment to the new culture. The rewards range from a new understanding of the world to discovering a new friend.

If you are interested in becoming a host, call Sr. Margaret Ann Landry at 632-6562, or call Rhona Goldman at 751-7257.

Parents Program

Parents of entering resident students are invited to attend a 90-minute workshop facilitated by professional and student staff on Saturday, Sept. 2 from 1-2 p.m. in the Main Lounge of G-Quad.

The residence hall experience for most students comes at a period of development when people are especially open to new influences as they make the transition from late adolescence to adulthood.

The workshop's aim is to provide parents with both a better understanding of what their sons and daughters will experience away at college and a forum to discuss their personal feelings about their child leaving home.

These programs also provide parents with information about residence hall policies, procedures and programs; an overview of the developmental model utilized by the Campus Residence staff; and an opportunity to express and share their views with other parents whose children will be going to college.

Residence Hall Check-In Information

The residence halls open for the fall 1989 semester Tuesday, August 29, with the arrival of international and graduate students. New undergraduate students may check in on Saturday, Sept. 2, and continuing residents are permitted to move in on Sunday, Sept. 3.

Check in throughout this period will take place in the college offices of each residence hall. During the check-in period, hours of operation will be from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Extended check-in hours will continue until Thursday, Sept. 7. Please note, that there will be no check in on Labor Day, Sept. 4.

To check in, bring your check-in pass with you to the college office of the residence hall to which you are assigned. There you will receive your housing agreement and room key, along with other important information related to housing and the Opening Week Activities Program.

Please note that residents assigned to the Chapin Apartments will check in at the Chapin Community Center (B Building, Room 1015). Chapin residents may be able to move into their assignments as early as August 1, 1989. More information about this will follow.

Residents must check into their assigned space by 5 p.m., Sept. 5, or forfeit their assignment. Residents unable to arrive by that date, should contact the quad office of the quad to which they are assigned to arrange for an extended check-in date.

A Feast for the Class of 1993

Last year's welcome barbacue was a tremendous success, enabling new students to meet their fellow classmates. This year's welcome barbacue, sponsored by the Office of Student Activities, will be held Saturday, Sept. 2 from 11:30 a.m. - 2:30 p.m. on the athletic fields.

GETTING STARTED

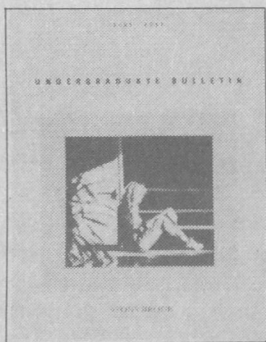

Key Publications Put Answers Right at Your Finger Tips

A university as diverse as Stony Brook offers new students a wide range of exciting opportunities. In addition, new students must learn how the university works. Academic deadlines, university housing regulations, class scheduling and parking procedures are just a few of the many important pieces of information that all students need to know and understand.

As in any new environment, knowing where to turn for information is essential. At Stony Brook, several campus publications provide students with vital information and make them aware of opportunities and activities that are available to them.

Undergraduate Bulletin

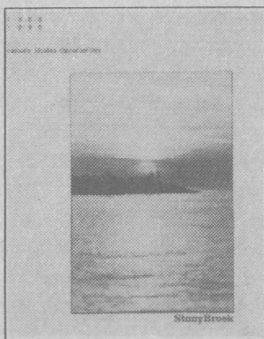

The primary resource for academic information, the Undergraduate Bulletin provides information on departments, financial aid, admissions, course listings and graduation requirements. Information on scholarships and academic programs are also included. The bulletin is published every two years and all students must abide by the rules and regulations in effect at the time of their admission. Each student is entitled to a free copy of the bulletin; replacement copies may be obtained at the bookstore for $2.

The Undergraduate Bulletin Supplement is published twice a year shortly before advance registration. It is a pamphlet that lists changes to the Undergraduate Bulletin. It also announces courses not regularly in the curriculum that will be offered during the upcoming semester, dates of proficiency examinations, and notices pertaining to registration.

Graduate Bulletin

This publication is the source of information for graduate students in the College of Arts and Sciences, College of Engineering and Applied Sciences, Marine Sciences Research Center, Harriman School for Management and Policy, and certain Health Sciences Center programs.

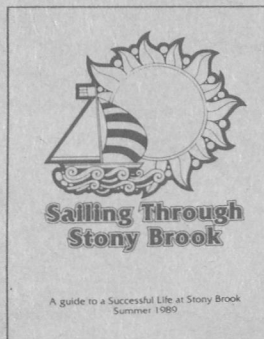

Student Handbook

The Student Handbook is a comprehensive guide to the university community and an introduction to the Three Village area. It contains information about on- and off-campus services and activities and university policies, regulations and procedures. The handbook will be published later this year and will be distributed through the Office of Student Affairs.

Sailing Through Stony Brook: A Guide to a Successful Life at Stony Brook

Distributed during new student orientation over the summer, this guide introduces new students to the social and academic aspects of Stony Brook life. Written by Stony Brook students, the publication shares an "insider's view" of student life and provides helpful tips and suggestions to ease the transition from home to college life. The publication is available from New Student Orientation, Room 102, Humanities, 632-6710.

It can be obtained at the CED Office, Room N-201, Social and Behavioral Sciences Building, 632-7050.

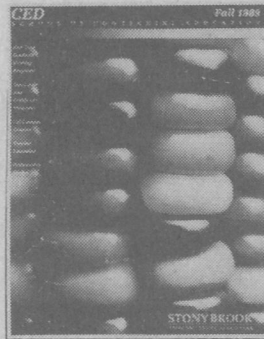

Statesman

The Statesman is USB's student newspaper and is distributed across campus. It reports on current university news and events. Students interested in newswriting, advertising, or a career in journalism are encouraged to work for the paper. Statesman is located in Room 075, Stony Brook Union, and can be reached at 632-6480.

CED Bulletin

Established in 1967, CED organizes credit and non-credit courses in the evenings and during the summer session. The CED Bulletin, published each semester, provides a complete list of CED course offerings as well as important academic deadlines and in-

Network Aids Adults Returning to College

Adult students are returning to college campuses in record numbers, a demographic trend that is expected to continue in years ahead.

At Stony Brook, approximately 12 percent of the undergraduate student population is 25 years of age and older.

The special needs of adult students are addressed by the Returning Student Network. The heart of the network is a corps of specially designated advisors from key offices on campus who are available to serve Stony Brook's 1,200 undergraduate returning students.

Part of the Returning Student Network is the Returning Student Club, which sponsors various academic and social programs for adult students throughout the school year.

The group will sponsor an orientation program Friday, August 18 at 7 p.m. in Room 236 of the SB Union that will provide information needed to get off to a good start.

Throughout the year, workshops will be offered on such topics as study skills, math preparation, time management and career planning. To help students select courses each semester, the club has a pre-registration program that provides academic advising.

Periodic newsletters sent to adult students highlight campus news and events of particular interest to this group and weekly brown-bag lunch meetings are held. The club has also developed a mentor program, which matches new returning students with continuing students.

Also planned for the fall is the Returning Student Open House Monday, Nov. 6. The event will be at 7 p.m. in Room S-211 in the Social and Behavioral Sciences Building.

 Get Involved

Representing the university's 26 residential colleges, the Residence Hall Association (RHA) is the official student policy development body recognized by the Division of Campus Residences. The RHA solicits input from residence hall groups and serves as the student voice concerning housing issues on the Stony Brook campus.

RHA Council members are elected by each college legislature. Meeting weekly, the RHA General Council appoints committees in public relations, residential improvement, policy, finance and education. Interested students should can obtain additional information about RHA from their hall director.

 Get Skilled

Freshmen may have a special interest in RHA's Freshman Leadership Program. This series of five workshops stresses student involvement and application of specific skills related to leadership.

Student leaders work with freshmen to acquaint them on becoming involved in student activities and governance. Application materials are available in quad and college offices.

 Get Spirited

The Student Alumni Chapter (SAC), created by the Alumni Association three years ago, offers Stony Brook students a head start in alumni networking and career counseling, and provides opportunities to organize social and educational events for students and alumni. The group's main objective is to develop Stony Brook spirit and establish a sense of tradition and pride.

Among the annual events sponsored by SAC are the Homecoming parade and king and queen contest; a Christmas fund-raiser for the Stony Brook Day Care Center; a "dress for success" seminar; a send-off cruise for graduating seniors, and an annual "oozeball" tournament.

For more information, contact the Office of Alumni Affairs, 320 Administration Building. Phone: 632-6330.

 Get Creative

The Undergraduate Research and Creative Activities Program (URECA) puts students together with faculty on one-to-one research and creative projects. The program is open to all students—even incoming freshmen—who demonstrate academic strength and motivation. Students involved in the program can even receive summer fellowships of up to $1000.

There's no way to describe a "typical" URECA project. One group of students is working with a professor in the Medical School to develop new techniques for kidney transplants. Others have undertaken performance-oriented projects, such as computer music composition and dance choreography. More than 500 USB students tackled such projects last year.

In short, URECA serves as a broker for students who want to get involved in creative projects, but need help in identifying faculty members who welcome student participation in their projects.

The office maintains a directory of on-campus opportunities as well as off-campus research possibilities in government, industry and non-profit organizations in the metropolitan New York area. Files of undergraduates engaged in research are maintained for recommendations for awards and graduate school applications.

Student projects are showcased at an annual URECA symposium. Winners of URECA's Undergraduate Research Award competition are eligible to present their work at the annual National Conference on Undergraduate Research.

Visit the Office of Undergraduate Studies, Room E-3320, Melville Library. Phone: 632-7080. Fall advising hours are Tuesdays 1 to 4 p.m. and Fridays 10 a.m. to noon.

and cultural setting, the National Student Exchange may be just the thing. Through the exchange, 35 USB students this fall will study at institutions as diverse as the University of Hawaii at Manoa, California State University at Northridge and the University of the Virgin Islands. About 50 students from other institutions will come here to Stony Brook.

"Students return from an exchange with new perspectives on their education and a better appreciation for their home region, family and campus," says Max Mobley, NSE coordinator at Stony Brook.

Exchanges for the 1990-91 academic year will be negotiated next March. Applications should be filed by the end of the fall semester.

For information, contact Max Mobley, Office of Undergraduate Admissions, 118 Admissions Building. Phone: 632-6868.

□ Take the Stage

Among the productions scheduled this year by the Department of Theatre Arts this year are Eric Overmeyer's comedy, "On the Verge;" Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew," and "The Only Song I Know," a drama written by John Cameron, artistic director of the Department of Theatre Arts.

Audition schedules will be posted during the first two weeks of the term on the call board outside the Theatre Arts Office, Room 3046, Staller Center for the Arts. For information, call the Department of Theatre Arts at 632-7200.

□ Tune In

It takes 150 volunteers to keep WUSB 90.1 FM on the air. Twenty-four hours a day, Long Island's "first station of the 90's" broadcasts its eclectic programming throughout Suffolk and Nassau counties and southern Connecticut.

Locally produced and syndicated programs focus on a range of public affairs issues. WUSB also carries live broadcasts of Stony Brook sporting events, concerts and lectures.

Volunteers are trained in all aspects of radio programming, production and operation. For more information, call the station at 632-6500 or stop by the studio, located in Room 260, SB Union.

□ Get Informed

Student organizations play a vital role in the Stony Brook community, offering students more than 200 ways to get involved. Your best opportunity to get acquainted with the full range of opportunities these organizations offer is the annual Student Activities Fair, scheduled this year for Wednesday, Sept. 20 from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the SB Union.

For general information about student organizations at any time, call the Department of Student Union and Activities at 632-6820.

□ Test Yourself

Through the Office of Undergraduate Studies, students may arrange semester-long internships to test career intentions, apply and improve skills in a setting other than school, acquire work experience that may be useful when applying for jobs or post-graduate credit, or to test a theory in practice.

To qualify for a credit-bearing upper division internship, a student should have completed 69 credits, attained a GPA of 2.5 or higher, and studied in an academic area appropriate for learning from the experience. Internships may be part-time or full-time, with eight hours per week for 15 weeks being the normal minimum requirement. Interested students should contact the Office of Undergraduate Studies at 632-7082.

Students planning to pursue careers in journalism, public relations, advertising, news photography or other communications fields may have particular interest in a variety of intern positions established in the university's Office of Public Relations and Creative Services. Depending on the assignment, students will gain direct experience in interviewing, news gathering and writing, editing and desktop publishing. Candidates with coursework or comparable experience in non-fiction writing are preferred. Resumes with cover letters and writing samples should be directed to Dan Forbush, associate vice president for university affairs, 322 Administration Building. For more information, call 632-6310.

□ Get a Job

More than 100 academic and administrative units at Stony Brook employ work/study students. Hours and earnings are determined by the amount of each student's award. Schedules must be arranged so as not to conflict with classes or study periods. Job placement appointments will begin Sept. 5.

Students who have not received work/study grants will find part-time campus job opportunities through the Office of Student Employment. Positions are posted on bulletin boards outside the Financial Aid Office. Earnings and hourly rates are determined by individual departments.

For more information or to schedule an appointment, call or visit the Financial Aid Office, 230 Administration Building, Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Phone: 632-6840.

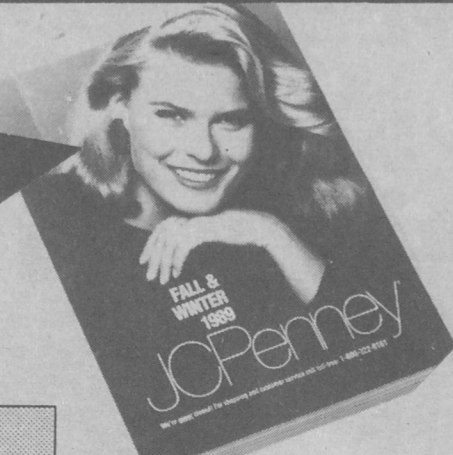

□ Go on Record

When the time arrives to apply to graduate schools or establish your career, you will want to complement your application or resume with a transcript of co-curricular activities and accomplishments during your years at Stony Brook.

Through the Department of Student Union and Activities, you can establish a formal "Student Development Record," which also serves as a tool for evaluating potential career strengths and interests. A student who wishes to derive maximum value from his or her USB experience should establish such a record through the Department of Student Union and Activities, Room 266, SB Union. Phone: 632-6820. (Stony Brook's Student Development Record program has been recognized by SUNY as one of the system's outstanding student life initiatives.)

RESIDENTIAL UPDATE

Quality of Student Life Improving, Residence Halls Get Good Marks

The quality of life for students living in residence halls this fall will be the best it has been in years, a reflection of some changes in the way the university operates and rehabilitates its student housing.

It has taken more than a year to reshape and restructure the Division of Campus Residences (formerly Residence Life), but the new division, which has put all areas providing direct service to campus residents into one administrative unit, is beginning to produce results, says Dallas W. Bauman, assistant vice president for campus residences.

"Evidence of the extent to which cooperation and coordination have improved is apparent in such important areas as the Common Area Damage program, window replacement and reporting and tracking of maintenance concerns," says Dr. Bauman. "Since these efforts require the participation and support of all areas of the organization, the necessary vehicles for communication and exchange of information have been a major emphasis of the division during the past year."

The division, for example, is about to implement a bar code inventory system and has reduced the number of broken and missing windows by 60 percent over the prior year. A computer is now tracking maintenance requests and responses and the status of items such as non-lockable doors and inoperative elevators.

The division also is gaining greater control over vandalism to public areas, the result of a new SUNY Common Area Damage Fee that allows the university to bill certain residence hall occupants for such damage rather than make all campus residents pay for the actions of a few through higher room rates. USB is the first major campus to implement the fee and last year billed for $33,000 worth of vandalism in public areas.

Problems do continue to plague the university's residential operations, Dr. Bauman points out. The division has identified a total of $24.5 million in unfunded capital rehab needs.

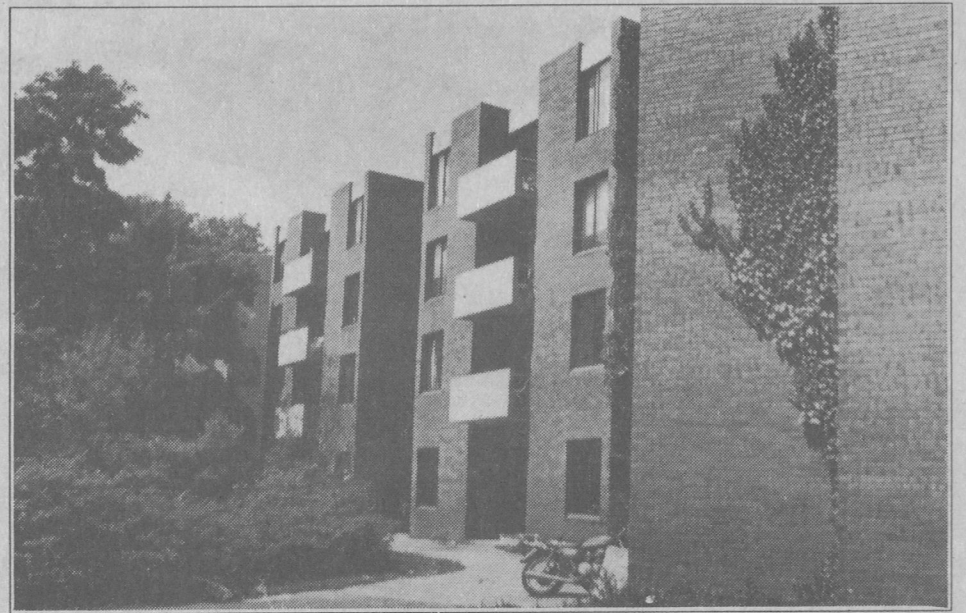

"The projects that have been funded, such as interior renovations to Chapin and roof replacement at Kelly and part of Roth quads were long overdue," he says, "and the drain on operating resources for capital work that needs to be done is significant."

For example, roofs which are being replaced this summer are the first to be scheduled, even though some buildings are more than 25-years-old. Much newer buildings are experiencing major deterioration because of leaking roofs.

Despite the problems, resident students say they like living in USB's residence halls. A survey distributed to 1,676 resident students in March drew an 80 percent response, noted Dr. Bauman, the results consistent with surveys conducted last November and in March, 1988.

While most students said they were satisfied with the programs and response

Centers Foster Living/Learning Environment

Stony Brook students will have an opportunity to do more than just study science and engineering this fall. They'll be able to live it.

Baruch College will become the third USB residence hall to house a "Living Learning Center" for undergraduates. The program gives students of similar academic interests a chance to live together and participate in a number of activities—some for credit, some informal—designed to enhance their academic experiences.

"The idea is to turn the living environment into more than just a place to sleep," said Dr. Joseph Lauher, a professor of chemistry who'll coordinate the Baruch Center. "We want to encourage students to think of the university as an interesting place to be even during non-classroom hours. We hope it will foster a greater sense of community."

The new center is open to students enrolled in a science or engineering major, and is the first such "theme" program in a residence hall. USB's two currently existing Living Learning Centers focus on two-year academic minors—a program in international studies, held in Keller College, and a Langmuir College program on human development.

RESIDENTIAL UPDATE

Renovation Program to Improve Living Areas

While many students have been on summer vacation the Division of Campus Residences has been working hard to complete many significant improvements in the residence facilities.

Among the most significant is the replacement of roofs on several buildings in Roth and Kelly quads, with additional replacement scheduled for the next construction season.

Ammann and Grey Colleges, which are being designated as meal plan buildings, will receive new carpeting, draperies and main and floor lounge furniture.

Approximately 700 bedrooms and suite living rooms, along with 50 apartments in Chapin, are scheduled for painting. Many new closet doors and window coverings will be installed, and more than $200,000 in new bedroom furnishings will be in place by the start of the fall semester.

Work continues on upgrading heat and hot water systems in preparation for the coming academic year. Many new pumps, valves and controls are being installed, which along with the continuing replacement of primary and secondary heat exchangers, will result in more consistent and dependable service this year.

Quality of Student Life Improving

of on-site staff such as hall directors and resident assistants, students gave low marks to the speed with which the university deals with maintenance problems. The university is responding to the problem.

Housing Guidelines

At the present time, it is expected that sufficient space will be available in university housing to accommodate all who request on campus accommodations, except family applicants. To apply for housing, please follow these instructions:

New Undergraduates: Upon acceptance to the university, students receive a housing packet from the Office of Undergraduate Admissions. Students should complete the enclosed application, and return it with a $125 housing deposit to: Bursar's Office, P.O. Box 619, Stony Brook, NY 11790. Assignments are made on a first-come, first-served basis, and are expected to be mailed to new students in August.

New Graduate/Health Sciences Center Students: Upon acceptance to the university, these students receive an application from the Office of Health Sciences Center Student Services. Students should return this application to the Office of Campus Residences, G-Quad, Stony Brook, NY 11794-0651. No deposit is required at the time of application. A $100 payment will be expected at the time of arrival to campus.

However, since no advance payment is expected, applicants are directed to submit a letter that reconfirms their interest in on-campus accommodations before an assignment will be offered. Reconfirmation letters were due July 15. (Applicants who applied after July 15 need not reconfirm.)

Please note that due to the limited space availability in Chapin while the renovation process continues, many graduate and some Health Sciences Center students will receive housing offers in the residence halls. As spaces become available in Chapin, requests to move from the residence halls to Chapin will be considered.

Continuing Students/Commuters: Continuing students wishing to obtain on-campus accommodations must complete a Continuing Student Housing Request available in the Office of Campus Residences. No deposit will be requested at the time that a space in the residence halls is offered. Continuing student applicants will be offered housing after all new applicants are housed. At the present time, it is anticipated that all applicants, except family applicants, should receive an offer of accommodations prior to the start of the fall semester.

Cable Television to Be Available in Campus Halls by End of Year

Television antennas and poor reception in residence halls will soon become part of the past as cable television arrives this year to Stony Brook.

Currently under development is a system, already partially in place, which will bring quality television reception of standard off-air channels to every room. The cable network, which will also include at least one campus channel, will be provided at no additional charge to residents. The campus channel, it is hoped, will offer such information as an events calendar, important campus information, and movies. Planning is in progress to make the system operational during the 1989-90 academic year.

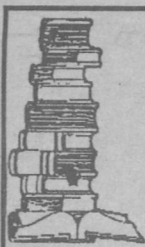

Rolm Switch telephone system begins its second year of operation in campus residences, the telephone system available to residents represents a state-of-the-art telecommunications package with many features and advantages. With features such as hold, transfer and camp-on abilities, provides each room with significant advancement over the technology that was previously provided. Additional features include data connection for PC computers and phone-mail, a computerized answering machine. With these features, the telephone system has capabilities equal to those of the most advanced systems available. For more information on the Rolm telephone system call 632-6130.

"We're doing everything we can to improve the response," noted Dr. Bauman. We're trying to reduce the frequency and length of service interruptions and deal with the cause, whenever possible."

Also reflected in the survey were student attitudes on safety. Eighty-one percent of the students said they felt safe on their floor and almost three quarters of those responding said they felt safe living in their residence hall.

Improved Patriots Look to Repeat Last Season's Strong Finish

Returning to school may mean the end of long summer days on the beach, but for the USB football team, it means the beginning of a promising season.

Planning to improve on last year's 5-4 record, the Patriots hope to pick up where they left off last season when they won four of their final six games in their first year in the Liberty Conference. "The key to this season will be to develop our offense earlier in the season," says head coach Sam Kornhauser. "We had a winning record last year, but we got off to a slow start."

This year, the Patriots' strengths lie in their defense, and Coach Kornhauser feels confident that returning senior defensive ends Kevin Hinphy and Mike Halkitis will continue to lead the squad. Linebacker

Kevin Chaikin, transfer Carl Hamann and recruits Victor Jean and Joe Fasano are all expected to contribute.

If a strong defense generates a strong offense then the Patriots should have a great season. Leading the offensive squad is quarterback Dan Shabbick, who will turn to his favorite receivers Danny Jones and Al Balkan again this year.

Running back Jimmy Napoli will return to the backfield, which will feature recruits Mike Savignaro and Oliver Bridges. Placekicker Bob Burden, who set the school record with a 47-yard field goal last season, hopes to become the third Kodak and Associated Press All-American from Stony Brook.

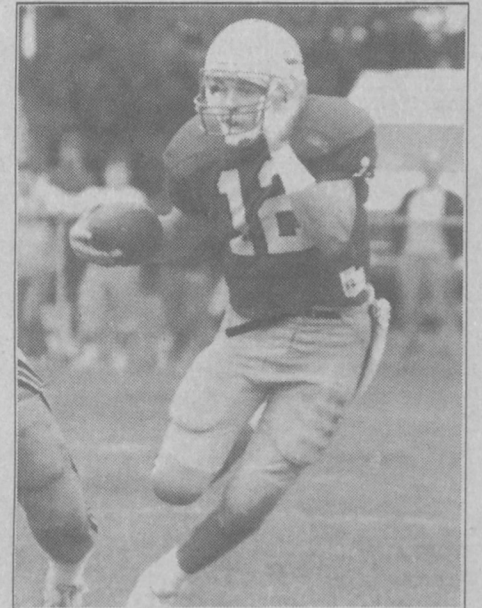

This year's schedule is highlighted by the Sept. 23 Homecoming Game against conference rival St. John's. Last season, one of two conference games in which Stony Brook lost was against St. John's.

"Our players will be ready for this year's rematch," said Coach Kornhauser.

Another challenging game will be against C.W. Post. Last season, C.W. Post led the Liberty Conference with a 5-1 record, with their only loss coming at the hands of conference champions Fordham. The Patriots defeated Fordham last season, proving that Stony Brook can play well against the league's best. The C.W. Post game will be broadcast on SportsChannel.

One of Long Island's best rivalries will match the Patriots against Hofstra. Hofstra has made it to the NCAA play-offs the past two seasons. Stony Brook played an outstanding game against them last season but fell short of victory with an 8-3 loss. "We played them closer than any other team", says coach Kornhauser.

The Hofstra contest is the second game of a ten-game schedule that opens at Ramapo Sept. 9.

Varsity Teams Face Challenge of Surpassing Last Year's Success

USB's Physical Education Division is preparing for another exciting season of varsity athletics. Following is a brief rundown on the other USB teams that will compete this fall:

Women's Volleyball: Coach Teri Tiso's squad has become a familiar sight at the New York State Women's Collegiate Athletic Association (NYSWCAA) Championships, and the team expects to return again this fall. Last season, the Lady Patriots compiled a 29 - 9 record and a sixth-place finish at the state championships. Top players to watch include setter Jeanne Dempsey and hitters Janet Benson and Terri Horan.

Women's Tennis: Last year's most valuable player Anna Bentsianov returns for her final campaign as the Lady Patriots aim for their second straight winning season under coach Alex Sasvary.

Men's Soccer: The Patriots have an ambitious schedule in 1989, competing against some of the strongest teams in the Northeast. Forward Tony Caputo, midfielder Dennis McGovern, and defender Tom Haluskey will be three key players as coach Jim Felix wants to improve on last season's 7-12-2 mark.

Men's Cross-Country: Bill Reed, who was the Public Athletic Conference champion, and an all-regional competitor at the NCAA qualifier, returns to lead the Patriots. Reed is looking toward All-

Women's Soccer Team to Play Second NCAA Division I Season

The USB Lady Patriots, coming off their finest season ever, plan to build upon their past success as they enter their second year as a NCAA Division I team.

In their first year at the Division I level, coach Sue Ryan's unit played a competitive mix of Division I and Division III opponents en route to a school record of 14 - 5.

Midfielder Lisa Schaffer

This season, the Lady Patriots are scheduled to play 16 Division I opponents as well as two Long Island Division II rivals, Southampton and Adelphi. "We're excited about this new challenge and we expect to surprise some teams," said Ms. Ryan.

Last season's leading scorer, Lisa Paladino, returns to lead the Lady Patriots' offensive attack. Paladino scored nine goals and added three assists for a team high 21 points. Midfielder Lisa Schaffer, who earned team MVP honors in 1988, is a fine defensive player who can contribute offensively as well. Last fall, Schaffer was the team's third leading scorer with 16 points on seven goals and two assists.

Returning players Louise Anderson, Chris Reardon, and Marie and Michelle Turchiano are also expected to contribute.

Ryan is enthusiastic about this year's recruits, adding "we have never had an incoming group of freshmen of this calibre." Ms. Ryan believes the influx of new talent will offset the loss of Adidas Scholar Athlete and All-American forward Noreen Heiligenstadt and goalkeeper Dawn McHugh.

This year's schedule is highlighted by the second annual USB Holiday Inn at MacArthur Airport Women's Soccer Invitational Tournament Sept. 23 - 24. Colgate, Villanova and Florida International will compete with Stony Brook for top honors. In addition, the Lady Patriots will host Ivy League foes Princeton and Columbia, and will travel to Cornell and Boston College.

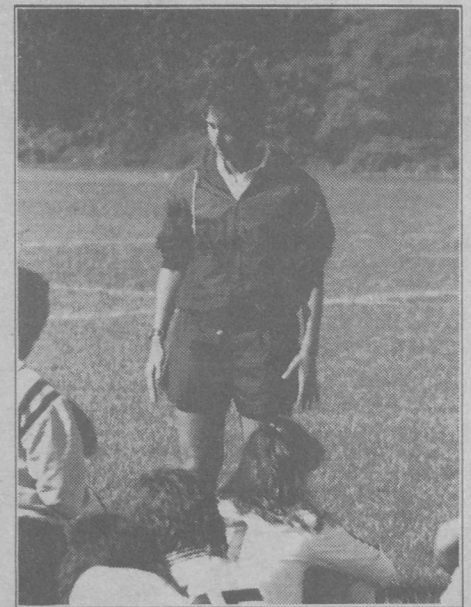

The season opens on Saturday, Sept. 9
