

To Our Readers

With this issue, THIS WEEK terminates publication in its present form for the balance of this fiscal year, through March 31. As noted in our November 21 edition, this results from recent sharp increases in the costs of printing and typesetting costs which cannot be absorbed in an office budget which has remained static for several years. These budgetary problems make it impossible for us to resume publication of THIS WEEK in its present format at least until new funding becomes available at the start of the new fiscal year on April 1.

In the meantime, we intend to publish an abbreviated version of THIS WEEK, beginning in January. We will distribute on a weekly basis a single-sheet, mimeographed news bulletin that hopefully will serve the same purpose as this publication — to share news of campus events and developments with the entire University Community. We will welcome contributions to the bulletin from faculty, staff and students by ways of notices and suggestions for articles. Please limit proposed contributions to 100 words or less. We will continue to publish Asterisk bulletins in cases where significant developments must be brought to the attention of the campus immediately.

We urge everyone to remember that our campus is served by a number of publications, all of which can be helpful if you have something that needs communication. Statesman, the thrice-weekly student newspaper, presents news and articles on a wide range of topics, as well as printing a calendar of upcoming events. The Stony Brook Union publishes News at Noon, which highlights the events of the day and publicizes notices from various departments and groups on campus. Persons who wish to, may have events and news releases included in outlets such as Statesman and News at Noon simply by completing a single Calendar event form which may be obtained from the Stony Brook Union Main Desk.

Deborah Myers and Neil Eddinger rehearse for the forthcoming production of "Abu Hassan."

Music, Theatre Depts. Present Comic Operas

A joint artistic effort between the Music and Theater Arts Departments will culminate in the production of two one-act comic operas on December 12, 13, 14 and 15.

Stony Brook students and community members will perform Carl Maria von Weber's "Abu Hassan" and "La Cambiale di Matrimonio" ("The Marriage Contract") by Gioacchino Rossini. The operas, which were both written in 1810, will be performed in English. Performances start at 8 p.m. Thursday, December 12 through Saturday, December 14 and at 4:00 p.m. on Sunday, December 15 in the Calderone Theater in Building B on the South Campus. Reservations may be made by calling the Music Department (246-5671). Tickets, which may also be purchased at the door on a first come, first serve basis, are $2.00 for the general public and $1.00 for students with an I.D. card.

Grumman Engineers Offered Training

A new graduate program designed to meet the technological needs of electronics engineers at Grumman Aerospace has been inaugurated by Stony Brook.

The program leads to a Master of Science degree in computer science and engineering and has been designed by the University in consultation with Grumman Aerospace. Courses, which will provide up-to-date knowledge of digital hardware and software technologies will be held at Grumman Aerospace Training Center in Bethpage.

Thirty-five persons, all Grumman employees, are enrolled in the program, which started accepting students in September. The program intends to accept 35 more persons in January.

For the past six years Stony Brook has offered graduate programs leading to the M.S. and Ph.D. degrees in computer science and in engineering. However, according to Richard B. Kiebert, Chairman of the Computer Science Department, this is the first time that a full scale degree program in the computer area has been offered off-campus, after working hours, and with specific orientation toward the practicing engineer.

Grumman, in the design and production of sophisticated spacecraft and aircraft, operates one of the largest computer complexes on the eastern seaboard.

"A complete program of courses leading to the M.S. degree will be given over a period of three years at the Grumman facility," Dr. Kiebert states. "Although most of the enrollment has been committed to Grumman Aerospace employees, there are a limited number of enrollments available to other qualified applicants."

Work on HSC Hospital To Begin Next Spring

What could have become yet another sad ending in the continuing inflation story turned into a happy beginning when officials of the State University Construction Fund announced last week the opening of unexpectedly low bids for the proposed 540-bed hospital at Stony Brook.

Building materials and supplies are being prepared and work on the hospital is expected to begin early in the new year. The hospital is scheduled to open in 1979.

Among the bids was one set at $5 million less than the $54 million set aside by the Fund for the hospital's construction. Preliminary site work on the building has begun.

The development is expected to provide a lift to the sagging Long Island economy. The hospital will employ between 700 to 800 construction workers—a welcome relief for the hard hit construction industry.

About $35 million of the hospital construction costs is expected to go directly back into the Long Island economy in the form of wages for local workers and payments for construction materials from local firms. Stony Brook's overall economic impact on Long Island as a result of the hospital project is now estimated by university officials to rise above the $150 million mark this year, with the standard economic "multiplier" or "ripple" effect from these expenditures approaching $300 million.

Designed as a twin-tower (one for the medical school and the other for the hospital), the structure will be built adjacent and connected to the clinical science tower, which is nearing completion. Combining both glass and mortar, the twin-tower will provide a totally harmonious and symmetrical blend with the clinical science tower and the Health Sciences Center overall.

In addition to serving as a teaching center for medical, nursing, and other students, the university's general care hospital will also provide for tertiary care. Incorporated into the plan are such facilities as a burn unit, a transplant service, and an accelerator and cobalt unit for cancer patients. Moreover, anticipated that the hospital will include an open-heart surgery program.

The Talk of Campus

REGGAE REGALED

Lister Hewan-Lowe, WUSB D.J., helped compile a list of popular artists and recordings in the reggae music vein. The list was printed in the November 4 issue of New York along with a list of Jamaican record stores where the music can be purchased.

SCIENCE WORKSHOP

Stony Brook was the site last week of a regional workshop-conference on unified science education. The conference was one of five to be held in the United States during the current academic year. The workshop was sponsored by the Science and Mathematics Teaching Center at Stony Brook, which is under the direction of Dr. Lester G. Paldy. Prof. Thomas T. Liao was the local workshop coordinator.

TALKING BACK

Dr. Marvin Goldfried, Professor of Psychology, often writes responses to problems submitted by readers of Newsday's LI Magazine. This fall, for example, he has dealt with the problem of insomnia and instructed a parent on how to accept the actions of her college-age daughter. At Stony Brook, Dr. Goldfried is directing a therapy program in assertive training for people who don't stand up for their rights, voice their opinions, or feel they are always being taken advantage of.

A STAR AT 13

Terry Clowney, a black student in the physicians associate program, has had a very active childhood. At age 13, he made his first TV commercial (he has appeared in plugs for Oxydol, Polaroid, Crest and Life Savers Gum). He has been in fashion shows, clothing ads for magazines, several movies including The Gambler, and danced in "Nutcracker" with the New York City Ballet. He says: "I'd like to go on with acting, but have medicine to fall back on."

NO MORE GAMBLING

John B. Gambling, the WOR radio announcer who began the famous "Rambling with Gambling" radio show died in November at age 77. Shorewood, his former home in Old Field, is now the State-owned residence of President Toll.

ELECTIONS WORTH LIVING FOR

Human Behavior magazine recently reported on research by two Stony Brook sociologists, Dr. David P. Phillips and Kenneth A. Feldman, which showed that there is "a significant dip in U.S. mortality before U.S. presidential elections." The magazine commented, "Apparently, if there's something worth living for, the dying find it within themselves to hang on."

EREWON IS ON WEST 18TH ST.

Brad Lutz, English graduate student, is running Erehwon, a production company which is presenting "The House of Usher: An Evening with Edgar Allan Poe," which is a one-man show being presented Fridays and Saturdays at the Nighthouse Theatre, 249 W. 18th Street, Manhattan.

FAITH AND THE GOOD THING

Charles Johnson, philosophy graduate student, has been getting a great deal of publicity in connection with his new novel, Faith and the Good Thing. The Corner Book Store threw a bash for him and he was the subject of an "up and coming" piece in People magazine and an interview article in the New York Post.

Holiday Reception ★

University President Jonn S. Toll, in conjunction with the S.B. Chapter of the Civil Service Employees Association, will hold a gala holiday reception for all faculty and staff on Monday, December 23. The reception will be held in the Stony Brook Union Ballroom between the hours of 2:30 and 5:30 p.m. In accordance with the University's agreement with the Civil Service Employees Association, CSEA employees are excused without charge to accords to attend this reception. Refreshments will be served and a three piece band will perform. Reliable sources indicate that Santa Claus will make a surprise appearance. Admission is free.

Faculty! ★

FACULTY ROLE STUDY: The Research Group for Human Development and Educational Policy is planning to begin processing the data received in its study of faculty preferences for the variety of activities in which they engage. If you have not yet returned your questionnaire, the Group requests that you do so before the semester ends. A high rate of questionnaire returns will help assure that the results of the study represent the views of most faculty. If you need another copy of the questionnaire, please call Dr. James Bess at 6-7680.

Calculus ★

The Mathematics Department has scheduled two evening hour sections of Freshman Calculus in order to facilitate attendance by commuting students. The Mathematics Department has scheduled section 20 of MSM 122 track B (Calculus II for students with interest in Chemistry and Engineering) and section 10 of MSM 123 (Calculus II and Probability, aimed at students interested in the Social and Life Sciences) to meet from 5:30 to 6:30, on Tuesdays and Thursdays. The recitations meet Wednesdays from 5:30 to 6:30. Interested students can add the course in the spring.

Religious Studies ★

The Religious Studies Program has announced a new course, RLS 230: The Contemporary Crisis of Religion. The course will offer individual study projects and lectures by distinguished visiting religious scholars. The class will meet Mondays and Wednesdays at 2 p.m. in Lecture Center, Room 110.

Sing! ★

The University Chorus is seeking new members. The Chorus is comprised of 150 singers from all parts of the university. It is open to students, faculty, staff, alumni and members of the community; no auditions are required. There is one weekly rehearsal on Monday evenings from 7 to 9:30 p.m. and all interested singers are invited to join. For additional information, contact Ms. Kaiser at 246-7961.

Careers ★

Effective Monday, December 9, those students who are utilizing the Credentials Service of the Career Development Office are required to submit two 10 cent stamps per request each time their file is to be released.

Due to lack of budget to pay for postage in combination with increased mailing costs and greater use being made of the Credentials Service, we are taking this action to preserve an important service that we offer to students.

Vacation ★

Seats are still available on the SB Alumni Association's holiday vacation trip to the Canary Islands. All alumni, including all faculty, staff and current students who have completed more than half of their degree requirements are eligible. The dates of the trip have been changed to December 22-30 because of late holiday scheduling conflicts. The price will be $374 per person, all inclusive, including tax and gratuities. This price is $15 higher than the originally scheduled price but includes an extra day's lodging and meals. For further information, call Lenore Nogiewich, Alumni Secretary, immediately at 246-3580.

Caroling ★

Everyone on campus is invited to join in Christmas caroling at about 5 p.m. this Sunday, December 15, outside the Stony Brook Union. That's when the "ACUC Caroleers" will be arriving at the Union building, the final stop in a town/gown caroling jaunt. The caroleers, in a straw-filled wagon drawn by two horses, will be campus and community members of the Association for Community-University Cooperation. They'll start at the Stony Brook Village Green at 3 p.m. Sunday, move to the Setauket Village Green and other community spots, then conclude their journey at the Union.
