STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK

SPECIAL EDITION, APRIL 22, 1997

Nobel Winning Chemist Speaks at Stony Brook

Nobel prize-winning atmospheric chemist Mario Molina will discuss the "Antarctic Ozone Hole" when he speaks at Stony Brook on Friday, April 25. This special, free, post-Earth Day program is sponsored by Stony Brook's Department of Earth and Planetary Sciences.

A professor at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Molina and two colleagues shared the 1995 Nobel Prize in Chemistry. The three were recognized for research that demonstrated the importance of catalytic effects arising from small concentrations of atmospheric trace gases on stratospheric ozone loss. Molina's talk begins at 4 p.m. in the Earth and Space Sciences building lecture room.

Light refreshments will be available outside the lecture room just prior to the event. For more information, contact Marvin Geller at 2-6170 or Jeri Schoof at 2-8700.

Annual Spring Pride Patrol

The University's tenth annual Spring Pride Patrol takes place on April 24, the last Thursday of the month. Pride Patrol will have a new format this year, combining the concepts of past Pride Patrols with the Green Team Program. Pride Patrol occurs twice a year in the spring and fall, and is dedicated to beautifying the campus. A volunteer effort, it only requires a few hours of time during the normal work day.

The Green Team Program is a partnership of faculty, students, and staff who are also dedicated to beautifying the campus landscape. Green Teams create small gardens that are part of a long-term beautification program. Since both programs share the same goals, it seemed natural to link the two programs for this day. This year volunteers can either establish a new Green Team and select a site or sign up for Pride Patrol and work for a couple of hours at one of the existing Green Team sites. For more information, call the Office of Conferences and Special Events, 632-6320.

Volunteers keep campus green at the 10th Annual Pride Patrol, April 24.

Special Calendar Edition

The flowers aren't the only things busting out all over! Stony Brook's Spring Season is upon us and there are activities and events happening all over campus. Enjoy the warm weather at the Concert Under the Stars. If you're looking for something a little more up-tempo, maybe you could test your paddling skill at the Roth Regatta. If you're an art lover, you'll find every gallery on campus bursting at the seams. In fact, there's so much going on, we had to make this special edition calendar to fit it all in. Enjoy!

Student Arts Festival

From April 27 to May 3 Stony Brook will celebrate the Second Annual Student Arts Festival presented by The Living/Learning Center for Interdisciplinary Arts. This exciting week-long celebration of art, music, theatre, and dance offers an opportunity to enjoy the work of emerging young artists. Many of the events are free. (See the schedule below.)

During Campus Lifetime (12:40 p.m. to 2:00 p.m.) on Wednesday, April 30, come outside for a free performance of the Stony Brook Jazz Ensemble in the Staller Center Plaza. Bring your lunch and enjoy this rare treat.

On May 3, at 8:00 p.m. in the Staller Center Plaza, dozens of talented young artists will put on a show you'll never forget—the first Annual Greeley College Interdisciplinary Arts Scholarship Concert Under the Stars. This concert will benefit the New Greeley College Interdisciplinary Arts Scholarship Fund. Admission is free; seats can be reserved for a minimum donation (tax-deductible) of $25 to the fund. Contact John Cameron at 632-7301 for a reservation form or to make a donation to the fund. Rain location will be the Student Activities Center, near the Coffee Kiosk.

The Fourth Annual Child Care Cash Bonanza takes place April 30 in the Student Activities Center. Proceeds benefit Stony Brook's campus child-care center.

Child Care Cash Bonanza

Stony Brook's fourth annual Child Care Cash Bonanza fundraising event will be held in the new Student Activities Center on Wednesday, April 30, at 7 p.m. A $50 ticket admits two to a gourmet coffee, tea, and dessert tasting, generously provided by the Three Village Inn Gourmet Shop and Bakery. If all 1,500 tickets are sold, the top cash door prize will be $20,000. There is a guaranteed top prize of $15,000 regardless of how many tickets are sold. There are a total of 30 cash door prizes. All proceeds benefit the Stony Brook Child Care Corporation, the nationally accredited campus center for the children of faculty, students, and staff. For more information, call 632-KIDS.

Parking on Commencement Day, Friday, May 16

At 8:30 a.m. on the day of Commencement, May 16, the main entrance to campus will be closed. All cars except those with handicap stickers will be routed to south and north P lots and Tabler Quad parking lots. Special Commencement buses will transport Commencement guests (and others) to the Sports Complex and other stops along the way. Only bus traffic will be allowed in the inner core of the campus. The entrance will remain closed until the ceremony is over. The main entrance to the campus will be open up to 8:30 a.m.; faculty and staff, however, should be aware that guests attending the morning departmental convocations will also be arriving and parking in areas near the Staller Center, Javits, Sports Complex, Social and Behavioral Sciences, Stony Brook Union, Physics, ESS, Library, and the Math Tower.

Soprano Nancy Allen Lundy and Jacques Despres

Popular soprano, Nancy Allen Lundy and Staller Center's "Summer Serenades" music director Jacques Despres will perform together in a program of works by Schubert, Chopin, Debussy, and Kernis. Quickly on the rise, young soprano Lundy made her New York City Opera debut in the fall of 1994 as Rosina in the Barber of Seville, and upon personal invitation of Maestro Spiros Argiris, debuted at the Spoleto Festival-USA in the spring of 1995. She has also performed leading roles for the Canadian Opera, the Santa Rosa Symphony, the Mozart Festival in San Luis Obispo, California, and the Aspen Opera Center. Lundy's education includes the Julliard Opera Center, the Eastman School of Music, and Concordia College. She was the winner of the 1993-94 SONY ES Award. The performance takes place on Saturday, April 26 at 8 p.m. on the Staller Center's Main Stage. Tickets are $22. For more information, contact Staller Center Box Office, 632-7230.

Mark Your Calendar

Save the dates! A three-day celebration to inaugurate the New Student Activities Center will take place on September 10, 11 and 12. Various programs, ceremonies, activities and lots of fun and frivolity will take place throughout the three-day period.

Not the Usual Suspects

What do Marvin Levin, professor emeritus of psychology, John Williams, associate professor of history, Les Paldy, director, center for science, math, and technology education; Rollin Richmond, vice president for academic affairs; Paul Wortman, professor of psychology, and Ceil Cleveland, vice president for university affairs, all have in common? They write poetry, and are even brave enough to read it aloud. On Wednesday, April 30 at 4:30 p.m. in the Poetry Center, they will read from their recent works in a program organized by Paul Dolan, associate professor of English, and aptly entitled, "Not The Usual Suspects." For more information call the Poetry Center, 632-7332.

Center for India Studies Inaugural Celebration

On April 26, the Center for India Studies will be officially inaugurated in the traditional Indian way—by lighting a brass oil lamp. This ceremony takes place in the Center (details below), and is followed by a celebration in Staller Center that includes speeches, Indian food, sitar and tabla music and kathak, vigorous North Indian dancing. "The public is warmly invited to this special event," says S.N. Sridhar, director of the center. Speakers for the event include Nassau County Chief Executive Thomas Gullota, President Shirley Kenny, Dr. Harsh Bhesin, the Consul General of India in New York, Azad K. Anand, the Chairman of the India Studies Foundation (which helped raise money for the project), V.S. Arunachalem, a former scientific advisor to the Indian government and currently a distinguished professor at Carnegie Mellon, Dean Yacov Shamash, Dean Paul Armstrong, and the director of the Center, S.N. Sridhar. A student-created video, "A Center is Born," will also be shown.

"The center is distinctive from other India studies programs in this country because it offers a balanced approach including science, economics, traditional arts, and humanities," says Sridhar. "Secondly, it will also have programs for the community such as dance, lectures, and classes. It is a matter of great pride to the students that this Center is opening." The lamp lighting ceremony takes place at 1:30 p.m. in the Center, East 5350, Melville Library. The celebration takes place in Staller Center Main Stage from 2:00 to 5:00 p.m. For more information call 632-9742.

Bad guy Doug Hurst in Murdered Innocence, at the Staller Center on Friday, May 2 at 7 p.m. On hand will be director Fred Carpenter, a Stony Brook alum.

Meet the Stars of Murdered Innocence A Film by Stony Brook Alumni

Independent film-maker and alum Fred Carpenter will introduce his film Murdered Innocence on Friday, May 2 at 7 p.m. at the Staller Center. Carpenter, the star and producer of the film, co-stars with Jason Miller (The Exorcist), Ellen Greene (Little Shop of Horrors) and alumna Jacklyn Macario. Frank Coraci, the director and Leonard Weintraub, the executive producer, are both Long Islanders. Meet cast and crew following the film. Tickets are $4. For more information call the Staller Center Box Office at 632-7230.
