CUNEIFORM TEXTS FROM BABYLONIAN TABLETS, PART 51.

By an oversight the preface omits to state that some of the texts of which copies by T. G. Pinches are published in this volume have been published previously in the form of copies by J. N. Strassmaier. Pinches's copies are published here as they frequently prove to be the more reliable.

PREFACE

In the course of preparing the first volume of the Catalogue of the Babylonian Tablets in the British Museum, the late Dr H. H. Figulla copied almost all of the tablets there identified as coming from the Nuzi area or from Kassite Babylonia. His copies appear here on pls. 1-6 and 10-14 together with supplementary copies made by C. B. F. Walker (on pls. 7-9) of the remaining tablets so identified and of two further tablets which on re-examination also proved to be of the Kassite period.

During the period 1892-8 T. G. Pinches was partly engaged in cataloguing and copying the tablets of the second Spartoli collection, which are believed mostly to have derived from Babylon. His copies of the astronomical tablets of this collection were published by A. J. Sachs in Late Babylonian Astronomical and Related Texts (Providence, 1955), and some of the economic and literary tablets have been recopied and published by other scholars, in the present series and elsewhere. Apart from a small number of tablets which are being prepared for publication by Professors A. K. Grayson and W. G. Lambert, all the remaining Pinches copies of unpublished tablets in this collection are published here on pls. 15-43.

Copies of a small number of tablets from various collections were found among the papers of the late Professor C. J. Gadd and appear on pls. 44-48.

Pls. 49-73 are the work of the late R. Campbell Thompson. In the course of studying the tablets which he had excavated at Nineveh between 1927 and 1932 he made copies of many fragments of lexical and literary tablets. Many of his copies seem to have been only hurried first drafts. The present volume incorporates all those copies which could conveniently be rendered fit for publication.

The volume has been edited by Mr C. B. F. Walker, who has collated all the copies with the original tablets and made such corrections as were necessary. In the course of this work he has had the opportunity to discuss some of the texts with Professors J. A. Brinkman, W. G. Lambert and E. Leichty. It is a pleasure to thank them here publicly for their co-operation.

Since the completion of the plates, No. 77 has been joined to BM 34104+, a historical-literary text concerning Adad-šuma-ušur (to be published by A. K. Grayson). Hungen
- 79-87: Lexical texts: No. 79 is Hh IX; ll. 11-26 correspond to MSL VII 39, 41-57. No. 80 is Diri IV; it was partly published in S. A. Smith, Miscellaneous Assyrian Texts, Leipzig 1887, pp. 12-14 and pls. 25-26. Nos. 81-83 are Syllabary B; Nos. 81-82 are probably parts of the same tablet. Note that Pinches's obv. = Unger's rev., and vice versa; Pinches's order is supported by the curvature of the fragment, which appears to come from the upper right-hand side of the tablet.
