Rachel Martin's career began with NPR as a freelance reporter covering the reconstruction effort in Afghanistan after the U.S. invasion in 2003. She has reported widely on women's issues in Afghanistan and NATO-led efforts to quell the Taliban insurgency. She has reported on U.S. military operations in Baghdad. As one of NPR's reporters assigned to cover the Virginia Tech massacre in 2007, she was on the school's campus within hours of the shooting.

Martin is now a correspondent for ABC News based in Washington, D.C. She covers politics, foreign affairs and faith and values topics for "World News With Diane Sawyer" and "Weekend Good Morning America" and is a weekend White House correspondent. Martin is a winner of the Religion News Writers Association "best radio feature" for a story about Islam in America.
